

GOVERNOR PUTS HIS FOOT DOWN ON LAWLESSNESS

Dr. H. A. Morgan, president, and the board of trustees of the University of Tennessee, in an inspection of local departments of the university. He arrived in the city at 7 o'clock from Jackson, where he addressed the West Tennessee Farmers' Institute Wednesday. He will be the guest of the local U. of T. Alumni association at the Chamber of Commerce at noon.

Extra Session Improbable.

The possibility of a special session of the legislature have divided exceedingly, according to information gleaned from the governor. "I am hoping that I will not have to call an extra session," he said. "The matter has been left to me for investigation as to the needs of one but I have yet formed no conclusion. If I find that it is my duty to do so, I will call an extra session. However, these times of unrest and disorder, and I do not believe an extra session would be advisable if it can be avoided."

If it does become necessary to convene the legislature in special session, not only the question of poll tax for women, but that of profiteering will be introduced. Gov. Roberts declared that new legislation designed to stop profiteering would be proposed. One of these would be a bill providing for the license of concealing goods for sale. It would be a bill in such a way that it would be a competition and extortionate price. The question of a state trade commission to get at a mercantile tribunal might also be brought up, he said. "We are going to have a state trade commission," some say, "said the governor. "It will, of course, be modified after the federal commission."

Antiprofit Meeting.

With reference to the meeting of district attorneys of the state with the attorney-general and himself, which the governor has called for Saturday in Nashville, he said stock would be taken of the powers of the courts of the state to protect the people against profiteering. Some policy of control for action of what powers the laws of the state now give to prevent extortion would be adopted, he said. "We have no anti-boarding law in the state, but we have a law which enables us to get monthly reports from the cold storage people and we can co-operate with the federal authorities by turning this information over to them."

The new tenancy system or long-time leases which was featured at the Jackson meeting was warmly endorsed by the governor. "It is the only system under which we may increase the production of small grains and get fall plowing. Diversification will not flourish under any other plan, nor can the fertility of the soil be maintained in a country where farming is largely done by tenants. I remember when I was farming, I always encouraged a tenant to take a long lease. I wanted him to stay as long as he could. Of course, there should be proper restrictions on the long lease, such as a clause in the contract providing the tenant shall farm in such a way as to improve the land."

The registration of women in East Tennessee far surpassed that of the women in Middle or Western Tennessee, said the governor.

most an impossibility to reach the real source of such violations. The report suggested the organization of a citizens' vigilance committee to co-operate with law enforcement officials in securing evidence sufficient for the prosecution of those responsible for the violations. The report also suggested that the committee should be organized on a city-wide basis, and that it should be organized on a city-wide basis, and that it should be organized on a city-wide basis.

In spite of the reports made to the law enforcing officials, little progress apparently is being made to improve conditions. Last May, it became known that certain investigations were being made by federal officials, especially as to liquor violations. The committee at that time suspended its activities, fearing that they might conflict with the federal investigation. A month or two later, the committee resumed its work. If the forces of law are to be rallied against crime of all kinds, a larger and more representative organization must be formed. Therefore the former committee of citizens has been formed into the Law Enforcement League.

One paragraph in the invitation, printed above, is significant. It intimates that in spite of all efforts to secure co-operation of law enforcing officials, no progress has been given and is not now being given. The league, in short, intends if law enforcement officers are secured any other way, to proceed against the delinquent public officials, whoever they may be, who have shown themselves responsible for failure to enforce the laws.

D. B. Fargason, recently elected president of the Law Enforcement League, said Thursday that since the publication of the advertisements Sept. 1, a number of men have joined the league, while several reports of lack of zeal or absolute refusal of police officers and others have been reported. One or two such instances will be referred to the grand jury at its next session. "The league is simply an organization of men who believe that some steps must be taken, and taken now, to see that public officials either enforce the laws, or give place to men who will enforce the laws," said Mr. Fargason. "If people of Memphis want all the laws enforced which can be enforced, they must join the league. It will be so strong that it can wield influence that cannot be opposed."

This is a matter in which all good citizens must act together. The league has absolutely no political purpose, no political purpose, in fact no sole purpose, to see that every public official fulfills the duties of his office. "Any one desiring to join the league, or having any information as to any form of law violations which can be enforced, may make such report, or join the league, by applying to H. B. Hart, the secretary, in Room 1801, Central Bank building."

4,000 VETERANS OF FIRST RETURN HEROES

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Four thousand officers and men of the famous First division of the regular army, veterans of some of the bloodiest victories which ever crowded American arms, returned home yesterday on the transports Amphion, Suwanee and Mobile. The little strips of vari-colored ribbons that decorated the tunics of hundreds of the returning soldiers bore silent testimony to the deeds which have made the division historic.

As far as individual decorations were concerned the pain was born by the 18th infantry, every man of which was conferred by the French government just before the unit boarded the Mobile at Brest. But the 18th had little to boast of. The French government, however, had decorated the 18th with the Second medal of honor, 40 percent of whom had been decorated. Included in the command of Major S. Warren of Gainesville, Fla., suffered 70 percent casualties.

The homeward voyage of the Mobile was saddened by the death of one member of the 18th, Private Floyd Law, of Culter, Okla., who was suffering from blood poisoning when the transport sailed but insisted on being taken aboard because he wanted to return with his regiment. He was operated upon by a ship's surgeon and failed to rally from the operation.

Co-operation In Marketing Will Be Fair Feature

Co-operative marketing of live stock, poultry, truck garden products and all manner of farm products in moving the question of successful farming for the little fellow in Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee, according to experts in agricultural work.

It is doing for the small farmer what leaves and drainage, arable lands and discovery of the mosquito theory has done for delta lands—it is the very making, according to a bulletin by the Tri-State Fair.

So important has become the work of co-operation in selling farm products that the Memphis fair this year has arranged a special department on co-operative marketing which will be in charge of H. O. Pate, marketing specialist of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce, which, it is believed, will lead to the already big interest in that one means of giving the small farmer a monthly pay day instead of one every year.

The nature of the exhibit, in a general way, will include five main points showing: Scope of marketing work in country by means of chart; preparation of products for market; standard grades of farm products and grading outfits; containers and packages; and systems employed by various marketing organizations.

OIL-LEASING BILL GOES TO THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—As passed by the senate last night with two important amendments offered by Senator Harris, Democrat, of Georgia, the bill providing for the lease of public lands with deposits of oil, coal, gas, phosphate and sodium, today was ready to be sent to the house.

The Harris amendments, the fate of which will be determined in the house, were in effect amendments to the Clayton antitrust act. One amendment would compel constituent companies of the Standard Oil company to sell their product at the same price in all parts of the country. Senator Harris explaining that the Clayton act, as now framed, permits the lowering of Standard Oil prices in any state to crush the competition of independent operators, the loss being made up in other states.

The other amendment, designed, its author said, the compel constituent companies of the Standard Oil company to become independent in ownership in fact as well as in name would prohibit stockholders of petroleum corporations from acquiring stock in any other corporation engaged in production of that commodity if both corporations have been created by court dissolution decrees. In avoidance of prosecution under antitrust acts. Passage of the bill followed a 12-hour session marked by bitter debate.
